

Summary Window states that the cause of all his refunding operations, since he became secretary of the treasury, is less than $4,500.

By order of John Jay Knox, United States comptroller of the currency, the old established private banking house of Joseph G. and W. P. Cannon, of Danville, Ill., under the title of the Vermillion County bank, is now styled the Second National bank of Danville.

The New York Herald gives currency to a rumor that Secretary Blaine is about to take the presidency of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas Railway—one of the chief roads of the Gould system. There is probably no truth in the rumor.

The Republican majority in New York is somewhere between 10,000 and 12,000. All the candidates on the state ticket are elected except Husted, who ought never to have been nominated. Considering the dimensions in the party, which the Democrats placed so much stress on, and the fact that it is an "off year," this is doing remarkably well. It indicates that the Republicans are really stronger in the state than they were a year ago. A 10,000 majority in an off year is equivalent to a 30,000 majority in an important year. The Democrats have the legislature by four votes, a proof that the stalwarts and half-breeds did really do a little mischief at each other. They did much less than was expected, however. The probability is that they have given vent to their bad humor, and that next fall will see the party in the state voting solidly for governor in a very emphatic manner.

BENJAMIN HARRIS BREWSTER, the eminent Philadelphia lawyer, who is engaged in the star-route cases, is an I. L. D., with a sheep-skin document to that effect from Princeton college. He is 66 years old, and full of fun, and his chin sinks delightfully into his ample cravat. He dresses in the old-fashioned way.

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 10.—Colonel Cameron, Republican, for governor, and the whole state ticket is elected by a majority estimated at 15,000. The Republicans have carried both branches of the general assembly. The Republicans celebrated their victory last night by a grand torchlight procession.

HAVING emphatically stated that the prosecution of Oatman was none of his business, and that he had nothing whatever to do with the star route cases, Mr. MacVeagh would confer a favor on large numbers of benighted persons by stating for what purpose an attorney general is hired. From the MacVeagh standpoint, that functionary would seem to partake somewhat of the nature of a beautiful dream—very fine while it lasts, but of no possible account when you want anything of it.—Chicago Tribune.

THE popular impression that the city of Venice was founded principally for the purpose of supporting gondoliers seems to be erroneous. Two functionaries have formed a ring—in it itself a very remarkable thing for two persons to do—for the express purpose of making the gondoliers unhappy. They have resolved to fill in the small streets, and to multiply the facilities for pedestrianism everywhere. The romantic gondoliers have ceased to indulge in merry songs since this programme has been lately continued. They have looked upon Venice as their special property, believing as they firmly do, that without them it would have neither position nor influence in the world. The propriety of keeping up the city exclusively for the benefit and glory of the gondoliers and love-struck couples who patronize them, has never before been questioned; and it will undoubtedly be as much of a shock to civilization to abolish the gondoliers as it was a few years ago for certain American cities to do without their volunteer fire departments.

WE have always given Wayne MacVeagh credit for grit and courage, but his precipitate abandonment of his post as Chief Lawyer of the Government, while the star route cases were still pending, detracts mightily from his reputation in this respect. He should have stood by his guns "like a little man," until the star route fellows were disposed of, and, if possible, put them in the penitentiary. That he refused to do so is a marvel to his friends and the public. Legally, he is still attorney general, the President having refused to accept his resignation, but he stubbornly absents himself from his place of official duty, insisting that the President must accept his resignation. By his peculiar course, Mr. MacVeagh has placed himself in a very questionable attitude before the country, and it will be hard for him to justify himself.—Chicago Journal.

The Next Illinois Senator.

Correspondence of Bloomington Pantagraph. SPRINGFIELD, Nov. 8.—The question of all others, and which is even now at this early date beginning to be agitated with some warmth, is the election of a successor to David Davis. The Republicans, believing that they will carry the legislature, are naming their candidates with some degree of liberality, as to number at least, and at this writing there are no less than five candidates in the persons of Hon. C. B. Farwell, Gen. T. J. Henderson, Gen. Green B. Raum, Gen. John I. Rinkner and Governor S. M. Callom. The Sixth Congressional District is said to be a unit for General Henderson, with General Rinkner or Governor Callom as second choice. Governor Callom has friends here, but they prefer he shall serve out his time as Governor; while the candidates in opposition to him are opposed to creating a vacancy in the gubernatorial office simply to make a United States Senator when there is ample material outside of the Governor from which to select a representative in that body. He will have two years to serve after the senatorial question is settled. The contest will be a sharp hand-to-hand fight; but as the race now stands, the honor will probably fall upon one of three men—all Generals—Raum, Henderson or Rinkner. Raum's admirable management of the Internal Revenue Bureau and his modest bearing have given him great prestige with his party, while the good sense and soldierly qualities of General Henderson and Rinkner will make them strong in many portions of the state.

The Sand Blast

Journal of Science.

Among the wonderful and useful inventions of the times is the common blast. Suppose you desire a piece of marble for a gravestone; you cover the stone with a sheet of wax no thicker than a wafer; then you cut in the wax the name, date, etc., leaving the marble exposed. Now pass it under the blast, and the sand shall cut it away. Remove the wax and you have the cut letters. Take a piece of French plate glass, say two by six feet, cover it with fine lace and pass it under the blast, and not a thread of the lace will be injured; but the sand will cut deep into the glass wherever it is not covered by the lace. Now remove the lace and you have a delicate and beautiful figure raised on the glass. In this way beautiful figures of all kinds are cut in glass and at a small expense. The workmen can hold their hands under the blast without harm, even when it is rapidly cutting away the hardest cutting glass, iron or stone, but they must look out for finger nails, for they will be whittled off right hastily. If they put on steel thimbles to protect their nails it will do but little good, for the sand will soon whittle them away; but if they wrap a piece of soft cotton around them they are safe. You will at once see the philosophy of it. The sand whittles away and destroys any hard substance—even glass—but does not affect substances that are soft and yielding, like wax, cotton, fine lace, or even the human hand.

Venator on November.

Venator's Almanac for 1882 has been published. Its introductory pages give the weather forecasts for the closing months of the present year. For November he says:

"November, 1881, will probably enter cold and decidedly wet, but this condition will suddenly, after the first week, give place to open and genial weather again nearly everywhere, with a disappearance of frosts in Northern New York and Canada for a marked period. We may expect some of the finest—at any rate, most enjoyable—weather of the season during this month at New York, Boston, Philadelphia, and Washington, and in Canada our 'Indian summer.' In western sections the fore and latter portions of the month are likely to be disagreeable, but I do not anticipate much trouble from snowfalls or blockades this winter until December. Should such occur, however, it likely will be found that the dates of the disturbances will be very nearly the same as those of the November of 1880. Possibly there may be a period of unusual warmth in proximity to the middle of the month."

Wolfe.

Springfield Post.

The fellows who in Pennsylvania set up the cry "Wolfe, Wolfe," when there was no wolf on, now that they have retired from business, unite with MacVeagh and "start a new party." They have for years been consumed with the idea that they were not appreciated. They have blistered their tongues yelling "boss," have worn the tops of their boots kicking, and blackened their consciences swearing at "the Camerons." They awoke yesterday morning to the glaring fact that they were finally appreciated for all they were worth.

The Star-routers Crawl Out Through a Very Small Hole.

More from the Elections.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—In the criminal court this morning Judge Cox rendered his decision in the star-route cases, discussing principally the question as to the infamy of the crime charged. The conclusion arrived at was that the crime was infamous, and the accused should have been proceeded against by indictment. He therefore sustained the motion expelling the information from the files of the court, and ordered the discharge of the defendants.

But few in Washington are surprised at the decision of Judge Cox, who grants the motion to strike off the information against the star-route conspirators and discharge the defendants.

The court room was crowded, the audience being composed of the friends of the accused. As soon as the judge's decision had been made, Mr. William E. Cook, assistant to the attorney general, read a statement, which he had evidently prepared in anticipation of the result. He denied the statement of District Attorney Corkhill that the attorney general had been consulted by him in regard to the adjournment of the grand jury, and claimed that the information had only been resorted to after the government had been prevented from asking an indictment until after the statute of limitation could have begun to operate. On the part of the prosecution, he promised that the accused would not long be able to exult. They would be brought before a grand jury and before a petit jury, and that they would have all the opportunity they apparently desired to defend themselves upon proceedings against which no technical objection could be raised.

After the adjournment of the court the accused were congratulated by their numerous friends.

After the rendering of Judge Cox's decision, Cook said it was deemed proper he should make a statement, which had been purposely delayed until this time, with reference to the fact that the cases against Thomas J. Brady and others had not been presented to the grand jury. The assassination of the President occurred on the 23d of July. On the Wednesday previous, at the President's request, he had a conversation at the white house in regard to the star-route cases. After a full explanation the President expressed himself fully satisfied with what had been done, but urged that the cases be pushed as rapidly as possible. It had been his (Cook's) intention to complete the necessary preparations and present the cases to the grand jury on its meeting in September. On Saturday following the nation and civilized world were shocked at the announcement of James A. Garfield's assassination. All labor, as a consequence, had been suspended. The delay had been primarily and chiefly caused by the assassin's bullet. It had been an unavoidable, humane, justifiable delay. Resuming actively the investigation, Messrs. Brewster and Bliss had become connected with the case. Several consultations had been held at Elberon, from which he (Cook) returned September 11, so as to be here at the assembling of the grand jury. He had been immediately recalled to Elberon, but on the 15th of September hastened back to Washington to proceed with the case. On the steps of the cars he had been surprised with the statement that the grand jury had adjourned.

The recess had been absolute, for had he at any time received an intimation the grand jury could have been reassembled. The attorney general and district attorney did not agree as to what passed between them. He (the attorney general) was not in the habit of noticing statements made in reference to him as authorizing it to be done. He (Cook) was, as regarded the star-route cases, the immediate legally recognized representative of the government and the attorney general, and in no manner had he been consulted as to the recess of the grand jury. Its movements and intentions, if not concealed from him were unknown. From the day of his unsolicited employment by the United States on the 1st of June till the present hour, he had devoted most of his time to star route cases. The labors on his part and on the part of his associates were far more arduous than known to any one. There has been no indecent delay. There would be none sustained by the administration and its superior officers. The cases, in whatever form the court might approve, would be carried on until the guilt or innocence of the accused parties should be proved to the jury, governed by the rules of law which might be announced by the court.

The court then adjourned. It is intimated at the postoffice department by persons prominently connected with the star route investigation, that the government will now endeavor to obtain an indictment against the parties who were discharged to day, upon the basis of alleged similar offenses of a later date than those charged in the information which has been set aside. It is also argued that the bar of the statute of limitations may be avoided in case of continuous conspiracy by making the evidence relate to the performance of acts long subsequent to its inception, and even allowing for a delay of six months in prosecuting the indictment, the parties in view may still be brought to trial before the expiration of three years from the issuance of certain orders, etc., etc., during the entire period of the alleged conspiracy. Postmaster General James will return from New York Saturday.

SPRINGFIELD, ILL., Nov. 10.—The recent frauds committed by Cluxton, of Vandalia, upon the executive office, in the matter of requisitions for criminals, has been, for several days past, the subject of much comment. Abuses of different characters in the same direction are now being freely adverted to. A Clay county instance is cited. Some time ago property upon which a very small chattel mortgage had been given was taken to Missouri. The party, by virtue of a requisition, was brought back and the matter was promptly settled. The mortgage secured from the state, in the way of fees and mileage, some two or three hundred dollars. This made the settlement very easy. It is known, however, that a settlement could have been made without a requisition, but not to the same financial advantage. It is said that it is currently believed in Clay county that the mortgage in this case received a fair "divide" of the money obtained from the state treasury, and many believe that from the beginning the "case" was an agreed one. The Governor has his eye on a number of rascals whom he has reason now to believe have been defrauding the state, and at the proper time proposes to make it extremely uncomfortable for them. He will ask the next general assembly to do some legal hedging, but meantime hereafter to secure requisitions. Persons to be designated as messengers will have to be indorsed to his entire satisfaction.

A distinguished ex-governor from a neighboring state was in the city the other day, and before leaving expressed it as his opinion that Senator John A. Logan would be a prominent candidate before the next Republican National Convention for the presidency, and, taking a view from the present, predicted that the great Western Stalwart would be the nominee.

Gen. John C. Smith is at present most talked of in connection with the next State Treasuryship; Hon. James P. Slade, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, will be a candidate for re-election. His main competitor will be Hon. Charles Stratton, of Jefferson county.

State Senator John R. Tanner, of Clay county, is in the city. He to-day conferred with the Governor relative to an extra session of the general assembly. In regard to this nothing definite can be stated at this time, but when congress shall have been convened and acted on the congressional apportionment, the question of an extra session will be considered by the Governor.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—Internal Revenue Agent Chapman, at Atlanta, Ga., reports by telegraph to Commissioner Raum: "Friday last I seized a package of illicit whisky from W. J. Fuller, in Habasham county. In my presence he avowed his purpose to put a bullet through Taylor Love, whom he supposed informed against him. Have just learned he has since mortally wounded Love, firing two loads of buckshot, one of which passed through his wife's bonnet on her head." Commissioner Raum notified Chapman to consult with the district attorney, and use every possible means to secure the arrest and punishment of Fuller.

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—The Evening Post says Judge Folger will assume the duties of secretary of the treasury next Monday. It is said that if he fails to obtain $2,000,000 of bonds next Wednesday, a call for extended G's will be issued, and their payment with rebate ordered.

Attorney General MacVeagh had a long interview with the President, and returned to Philadelphia. Postmaster General James, this afternoon had not heard of the decision in regard to the star route cases, and declined to express himself beyond explaining that while the case against defendants was a strong one, it was only one case in a hundred. Other cases would go on by indictment.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—Virginia Democrats are badly cut up at the election of Cameron. They predict that the Readjusters and Republicans in the legislature will fall out over the election of United States senator; that Mahone pledged Lewis the senatorship, if he would consent to let his name be used on the Readjuster state ticket; that Lewis consented on this condition, and he holds the Readjusters as bound to make him senator. Cameron, Riddleberger and Auditor Massie, all prominent Readjusters, want to be senator, and will make efforts to be elected. The Democrats hope and believe that the Republicans and Readjusters will fall out over this position. If they disagree the Democrats will propose to elect Gen. Wickham, a straight-out Republican. If the Republican members of the legislature will unite with them, the Democrats will gladly elect a Republican to beat Readjusters, and it is thought the national leaders of the Republican party would, in view of the narrow margin in the senate, advise the election of Wickham rather than have a coalition senator.

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 10.—Claims made to-day at LaCrosse by the Chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee indicating that the state is yet in doubt, are not based on the returns. Sufficient returns are now in to insure beyond doubt the election of the entire republic can ticket by pluralities of from 7,000 to 10,000. Secretary Payne, of the republican state central committee, places the pluralities at 8,000 to 11,000, with the legislature 87 republicans to 46 democrats on joint ballot. There is no question whatever of the election of the republican state ticket.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—Gladstone, in his speech at Guildhall last night, declared that the law had been enforced with firmness and decision in Ireland. Its enforcement had been entrusted to those agents who had already earned title to the gratitude of their countrymen by the courage and exemplary patience with which they performed their duties.

The Times says: This emphatic statement may serve as a warning to those tenants who have been tempted to yield, even temporarily, to the "no rent" policy. We understand that a practical difficulty of engaging in conflict with a large body of the Irish tenantry is to be met, if occasion arise, by taking one by one the counties in which resistance to rent may be organized, and by using for the enforcement of the law the whole power of the executive. The landlords, if assured that the government will strenuously support their legal rights, now that the last semblance of injustice has been removed, may be called upon, in certain districts, to postpone their demands until the recalcitrant tenants are reduced to submission elsewhere. It is plain thus that the law will be effectually vindicated. Those who have time to reflect will probably profit by the exemplary punishment of their fellows.

There were eight arrested in Ireland to-day.

Grand Discoveries.

The discovery of a great remedy is frequently a matter of accident. This, however, is not the case, with TARAXINE, now widely known and approved as an almost infallible remedy for Liver Complaint and diseases of the Kidneys and Bowels. The best physicians have for many years used various preparations of dandelion root in these diseases but with only indifferent success. After a long series of experiments, a combination, with the active principle of the Dandelion as a basis, and other improved remedies to heighten its potency has been effected, and the desired specific for these diseases has been found in the product—TARAXINE.

WOMEN with pale colorless faces who feel weak and discouraged, will receive both mental and bodily vigor, by using Carter's Iron Pills, which are made for the blood, nerves and complexion. 9

The Marie Prescott dramatic company filled their engagement at the opera house last evening, and presented "East Lynne," the play of the "Countess" being too heavy for Miss Prescott, who was indisposed last night. Owing to the brevity of the announcement only a fair audience greeted the company. There will be no performance at the opera house to-night owing to the inclement weather and Miss Prescott's indisposition. Mr. F. Weber Benton, the manager, deems it unwise to open. All who have purchased tickets will have their money refunded by presenting their tickets at Curtis & Co.'s.
The village of Springfield has a mayor who comes down heavy on the police force of that town. His name is McCree, and he has administered the affairs of Springfield for just six months. During that brief period he has caused to be discharged nine policemen. He watches the knights of the Billy like a hawk, and if they are caught in failing to do their duty, or are guilty of any petty misdemeanors, off come their official heads.
DANVILLE has taken notice of Decatur's effort to secure the location of the Delphi paper mills at this point, and the Commercial, in speaking of the enterprise, urges the people of that place to interest themselves in the matter and endeavor, if possible, to get the mills built at Danville. Our citizens have the bugle on Danville in this matter and will capture the mills if Kinchard & Son are thinking seriously of coming to Illinois.
CAN this be true? It is said that a lady in Pekin presented her husband with $1500 in money, which she had saved up for several years past for a rainy day, and had it buried in the cellar, which fact was known only to herself. Her husband wished some money to purchase a good piece of property, when she presented the above amount, all in bills.
AN aged, inquisitive old gent poked his head into the Republican office door last evening, and asked, "Who's dead?" The man at the wheel answered, "No body that I've heard of." The old gent then asked, "What is this craps on the door for?" The boss went out and found that "Dotty" had hung the job office towel on the door knob while he chased a lame pigeon up an alley.
The annual ministerial meeting of the preachers of the Decatur District was not held at Macon this week, as has been incorrectly stated. Dr. Davis learned before the time set for the meeting that all of the preachers in the district could not be present, owing to other important engagements, and he accordingly sent out cards postponing the session until some future time not yet determined.
YESTERDAY forenoon at 9 o'clock, the weather was cold and clear in Chicago, and last evening, in Decatur, the state of the atmosphere indicated that snow would fall in a few hours, but this morning early a cold, disagreeable rain came instead, filling the gutters and branches with water. We are now favored with more puddles of sloppy water, more mud, and soon we will have a tight freeze up.
It is stated that the post office department has conferred authority on post masters not possessed before, to correct misdirected letters, where possible, and forward them to their destinations, in fact, as has been the custom, of sending them to the dead letter office.
The lithographs are up for the appearance of the A. E. H. majestic consolidation aggregation, four shows combined, at the opera house on next Thursday evening.
The merchants have commenced making tempting displays of goods for the holiday season. The eyes of the little folks grow brighter in anticipation of Christmas.
The Leonard Assembly at the Guards' Army last night was another happy affair, the attendance being very large, and the music superior.
To-morrow "Sam" of Posen will be given at Springfield. The company may visit Decatur some evening during the latter part of the present month.
The Hospital fair was a financial success. The money will be used in making the building larger and more comfortable.
Join Prof. Latz's new singing class to-night. It will meet in Philharmonic Hall on North Main street.
Dramatic Readings
The sale of reserved seats for the entertainment to be given at the opera house next Tuesday evening by Mrs. Laura E. Dainty, the gifted dramatic reader, opened this morning at Curtis & Co.'s, and those wishing to hear her should select their chairs at once. The proceeds of the entertainment, it should be remembered, will be added to the book fund of the public library. The prices of admission are 35, 50 and 75 cents, and no extra charge for reserved seats. Send the Mar to (Ohio) Leader.
Laura E. Dainty—This gifted lady made her first appearance before a Maricetta audience at the City Hall on Saturday evening. As her coming had been heralded by hand bills and newspaper articles, lauding her powers to the skies, the audience naturally expected a feast of good things, and right royally they were supplied. The programme was listened to with rapt attention, the lady carrying her audience with her throughout its entire length. Her selections were varied, one moment conveying her audience with laughter over "The Naughty Little Girl's View of Life," and again suffering the eyes with tears over the death of "Poor Little Joe." The universal verdict at the close of the entertainment was, that the programme was too short.
Dainty and her infatigable reading will be forgotten in Marietta, but she can rest assured of a warm and fitting reception should she ever favor our city with a return.

Decatur Marked.
An effort is being made among the members of the Decatur military companies to organize rival rifle teams, and the probabilities are that their plans will be brought to a head in a few days or weeks. On Wednesday evening there was a called meeting of the Guards for the purpose of considering the matter of organizing a rifle team for regular target practice, but owing to the attractiveness of the Kellogg concert the attendance of the members was so light that those present concluded to defer action until a subsequent meeting. The members of the Decatur Rifles are about ready to form their team, and have about decided who the ten men shall be. They will probably form their squad in a few days and elect J. N. Baker captain. In this connection it may be interesting to state that Major C. M. Darfee thinks of purchasing a fine badge through the firm of O. E. Curtis & Co., which he will offer as a prize to the rival teams to be competed for by them, when they consider themselves in proper trim for the contest. There are good marksmen in both military companies, and no doubt the teams, if organized, will earn a reputation second to no other team in the National Guard. There is more glory in store for Decatur.
Decatur's Contribution.
As has been heretofore stated in these columns, Decatur and Hines Mound township have contributed their mites to the relief of the sufferers by the recent devastating fire in Michigan. Mr. Werner has received the following, which explains itself:
PORT HURON, MICH., Nov. 3, 1891.
MR. A. W. WERNER
Your favor of October 31st, with remittance of $53.42, for relief of sufferers by fire in our neighborhood, has been duly received. It will be faithfully applied, and will also be acknowledged in our local papers. Many thanks.
W. H. ALLARD, Sec. Executive Com. for Relief.
MR. A. W. WERNER, who may be found at the American Express office, will soon send to Port Huron a contribution of clothing, and those having articles or cash to donate for this benevolent object will please leave such contributions at once at the office named. No charges exacted for forwarding the contributions.
Macon Chicago.
We clip the following paragraphs of interest to our readers from the Macon Independent of the 10th inst:
The lady members of the I. O. G. T. Lodge in Macon have beautifully and tastefully decorated their lodge room. The grand pow wow, so soon to come off, will be held there.
The Decatur Republican compliments Officer Brewer for killing a dog at the first fire last Friday. That's right. He is the only man on the police force that can hit a barn with a revolver bullet, unless inside the barn.
It would be a good idea to connect Macon and Decatur by telephone. The Independent will give as much as "any other man" to consummate this object. Let's call a meeting, resolve upon it, and then go to work to secure it.
We are with you, Bro. Walls, on the telephone matter. It is a scheme that the Republican has frequently suggested and we hope that soon the citizens of Macon and other towns in the county will consider the matter seriously. With proper agitation all the towns in the county could be connected by telephone with Decatur, at a comparatively small cost. We have 75 subscribers in this city, and there is not one among them all that would do without his step and time saving instrument. Wnoop 'em, Walls, and get Macon to break the ice.

Requirements of life are so many in these days that whatever will enable the necessary work to be done in the quickest way, providing always that it is done as well, cannot be too highly valued. Time was when there was not such a pressure upon every moment of time, when to be 15 minutes late was not one of the unpardonable sins upon the calendar, but that was before the railroad and telegraph had brought the opposite sides of the earth within hailing distance, and made the people on different shores of the great oceans neighbors and exacting neighborly kindnesses from each other. It was when events did not follow each other in such rapid succession as to require a lightning pen to write their history.
Great improvements were made to facilitate all kinds of labor, except that of writing. Until very recently the weary hand held the pen or pencil that sketched the quick movements of the busy brain and there was no relief. Steam farming machines had lightened the burdens of agricultural laborers, new inventions made the manufacturer's task an easy one, sewing machines planted the stitches with greater ease and rapidly than the fingers could, no matter how deft they might be, but still the writer worked on in the old way.
A new day has, however, dawned to him who will take advantage of it. The Caligraph does for the penman what all these other inventions have done for those who use them. It makes writing easy and delightful. No more aching wrists. No more blisters. No more slow scratching with pen and pencil, but with light, quick touch the Caligraph prints the thoughts as they come, and the work is done with scarcely any fatigue and with a far less expenditure of time.
